The proceedings of yesterday were read. Henry L. Clark, of St. Louis, was sworn for the defence: Question by the accused. Were you employed in the agency of the Commercial Bank of Cincinnati, at this place, in 1837; if yea, in what capacity? Answer. I was employed as teller at that period; I was serving at one time both as paying and receiving teller. Question. Look at these papers, (R, S, T, and U,) and state whether you ever saw them before; if yea, when, where, and for what purpose. Answer. I believe they were all presented to me at the Commercial Agency, on or shortly subsequent to their respective dates, for payment; and I paid them, I believe. Question. Are you acquainted with John Darnielle's handwriting; if so, do you believe the signatures on the back of these papers to have been written by him? Answer. I believe they were all written by him. I am acquainted with his handwriting. Question by judge advocate. Was it customary in the bank in which you were employed to require the endorsement of the name borne on the face of the check? Answer. When made payable to order, it was invariably the case. Question. Did you pay this check, (47;) if so, at what time and to whom? Answer. I believe I did not pay it. Question. Are n...
