It is noteworthy that Dem. nowhere makes use of the fact that Aesch. professed to have had the oracle and oath and curse, of the times of Solon, ready at hand when the unexpected crisis arose. Unfortunately we cannot know whether he was telling the truth or not. He tells us (3. 113) that these are "still inscribed at the present day," but where? At Delphi, of course; but were they in view of the assembled council, where they could be read? His account excludes this assumption. 152.
